Expenses of the Primary. Editor of The Times-Dispatch;

Editor of The Times-Dispatch; Sir.—The offer of Newport News to guarantee costs of the State primary is an example worthy of being followed by this city. There can surely be found enough patriotic citizens who will give a day's work for the sake of good government. That the primary is the fairest way of nomination seems to be the opinion of a large majority of Virginians.
But if it is to be burdened by the imposition of oppressive assessments upon candidates, it will be rendered unpopular, and cause its abandonment and a return to the old politician mode of a "cut and dried" convention, in which ward heelers take charge and decent, quiet heelers take charge and decent, quiet heelers take charge and decent, quiet citizens are shut ou.

The people are no longer to be ruled by petty politicians; that day has passed, thanks to the new Constitution, in the restriction of the electorate. Why cannot all the primaries be legalized, and the expenses borne by cities and counties? This would seem quite as necessary as in the case of the regular elections, for, indeed, the primary actually settles the question, and is the really important election. Let the candidates call for friends to man the polls as volunteers.

NON-CANDIDATE.

We are disappointed that Richmond Las not already announced that she will conduct her own primary without cost to the State Committee; but it is said that action will probably be taken by the committee on Friday night. Even if we had to pay the judges and rent the polling places, the cost would be only a few hundred dollars. Richmond cannot afford to be less patriotic than Newport News The Times-Dispatch was an earnest advo cate of a legalized primary when ...e General Assembly was last in session, and we also took the ground that the expenses should be assessed against the several counties and cities. That is the only sure way to establish the primary in Virginia and make it universal. Moreover, as a matter of principle, we are opposed to assessing the candidates to pay the cost of the election, just as we ard opposed to assessing officeholders t a campaign fund for any purpose The whole thing smacks too strongly of an officeholder's oligarchy. Elections are for the benefit of the people, and the people should scorn to allow the candidates to pay the cost. Suppose the candidates ild refuse to pay the assessmen would the people let the election go by default? Whose affair is it, the affair of the people or the affair of the officeholders? There can be but one answer and the people should pay the cost,

But for the present the law makes no provision for the expenses, and the can didates have been assessed, Notwithstanding the outery against the "heavy assessment." the amount assessed will not begin to pay the cost of the State primary, if all the judges are paid and every item of expense charged up to the candidates. Thre is but one mode of re lief, and that is for Democrats to volun teer to give either service'or money to the sause. The ideal thing to do is for eac. rity and county to follow the noble ex ample set by Newport News, Surely Richmond will not lag

Mr. Alexander Comes to Tine.

James W. Alexander, late president of the Equitable Assurance Society, is ill and unable to attend to business, but his son, Henry M. Alexander, has made restitution to the society of his father's share of the syndicate profits of "James H. Hyde and associates."

This statement is made by the New York correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, who says:

"The resiliution of the syndicate profits was absolute and unaccompanied by any condition or reservation. Henry M. Alexander sent to Mr. Morton a letter enclosing a check for 426,033.22 and a release of the $40,790.54, which his father desired with Cochier Murch 15 and 15 an pease of the MA, 19459, which his father de-posited with Cashier Murray, of the Equitable on February lst last, pending decision as to the propricty of retaining the money. The restitution is considered the most important victory won by the State officials who are moving to compel the restoration of monopy alleged to have been obtained improperly by officers and other sums should follow within the next few days or weeks."

That looks hopeful. There is no doubt that these profits were illegally made at the expense of the society and every dollar should be returned. Mr. Alexander has done well to restore his part without compulsion. It is further "authoritatively an nounced" that in accordance with the terms of the deed of trust, documents are already being printed which are to make the Equitable Life Assurance Society a mutual life company in the fullest sense of the word.

According to the deed of trust, According to the deed of trust, the pollcyholders of the society within the next four years are to elect twenty-eight directors, seven each year. For the purpose of carrying out the deed of trust the slips now being printed, which are to be used to elect the first seven directors, do not contain the name of any man save those of the three trustees—Messrs. Cleveland, O'Brien and Westinghouse. These printed slips are to be issued to the policyholders, and the policyholders thempolicyholders, and the policyholders them-selves are to write in the name or names of those they desire to vote for as direcof those they desire to vote for as direc-tors of the Equitable Life Assurance Society.

The three trustees under the deed of trust have no course left to them savo record the votes for the director of potors whose names are written on the slips by the policyholders. There are 600,000 policyholders of the Equitable, and the three trustees are, in other words, to act only as tally clerks in recording the vote or votes for directors of the policy-

This system, it was declared, will bring about the broadest and most generous kind of mutualization of the society's af-fairs for the benefit of the policyholders.

This is not ideal, but the situation is clearing up and is so much better than policyholders feel a deal more comfortable. Certain it is that the Equitable's affairs are in far better condition than they have been for a long time, and it goes without saving that the management for some time to come at least will be far better and the interests of the policy holders more zealously guarded.

The Pure Election Law.

Connecticut has a law the purpose of which is to prevent traffic in votes. We judge it is fashioned somewhat after the rattern of the Barksdale pure election law in this State, but some of the Connecticut papers have very little faith in its rower for good, among them the Ansonia Sentinel. That paper says:

"The law may say to a politician. Thou shalt not spend spend more than $5,000 for election purposes," but that will not prevent his spending all that he sees fi and can raise. It is more possible to and can raise. It is more possible to limit the price of elections than it is to limit the price of potatoes. The secret collection and the secret expenditure of campaign money will continue so long as rich, unscrupulous men continue in politics or push their favorites into public office."

The trouble with the Connecticut la seems to be that it is not enforced and like the Virginia law it cannot be selfacting. No law can, and neither the Con necticut nor the Virginia statue will help to purify the ballot and reform election methods unless it is rigidly enforced. Th pure elections law applies to primaries as well as to general elections, and the penalties are the same.

The law provides that no candidate for office shall expend, pay, promise, loan or become pecuniarily lible in any way fo money or other valuable thing to influence voters in his behalf, or permit the same to be used, with his know ledge and consent, by his friends or adherents in any election, primary or nominating convention. The only money pose of printing or advertising in some newspapers, or in securing suitable halls price. The law further provides that no person shall expend, pay, promise, loan for any money or other valuable thing in behalf of any candidate for office or nominating convention. Any violation of this law subjects the offender to a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, or confinement in jail for not less than on nor more than twelve months.

The law is plain and those who violate

Important to Officeholders

We have the following important reminder from a Virginia judge:

Editor of The Times-Dispatch: State officials who are moving to compel the restoration of money alleged to have been obtained improperly by officers and directors of the Equitable by virtue of their connection with the society. Moreover, the statement is made in authoritative quarters that Attorney-General Mayer and his advisers would not be largely surprised if the restitution of which they were chosen. Upon failure to give such new bond within the time pre-scribed, the office by the express terms of this section becomes vacant. My impres-sion is that this provision of the Constitution has been generally overlooked. I find it so in my circuit. All clerks of courts must give this bond before the first day

Dr. S. C. Mitchell, of Richmond College, institution to accept a chair in the University, even at an advance in salary of one thousand dollars. We are not surprised to hear it. Dr. Mitchell is not working for money, but for the uplift of humanity, and he will labor where he thinks duty calls him, without regard to salary. He is a fine example of the "consecrated teacher."

The Expenses of the Primary.

Editor of The Times-Dispatch:

Sir,—Will you allow me a little space in your paper to give some views in regard to the plan of assessment in the primary, which comes off on the 22d of August. It seems to me that the expense might be so divided that none of the candidates will be taxed very much. Now let us make a few figures. There are 100 counties which will elect clerks, and there are at least two candidates in each county. Let the committee tax each of these, say $10; this will give $2.000. There are 100 members of the Legislature to be elected, and you can safely count on two hundred candidates for these places, and probably more. Now tax them $10, and this will make another $2.000. Then I think there are 20 Senators to be elected in as many districts. Say tax them $10 each; this will make $200, thus taking about four thousand two hundred dollars off the other candidates for State offices. This will leave the rest of the amount to be pald by the 14 candidates now in the fight for the high state offices, which pay good salaries. Tax these men on an average of two hundred and clighty-five dollars on, in proportion to their salary, and you would have about $3,500, or near that as these figures are not exact, because in some places there will be more candidates, and in some there will be less.

Mr. Editor, we have had fine rains, and the crops are looking well where they have been worked. The wheat has been all cut, but the crop is not a good one by any means.

Politics is all the so now: Martin and Montague seem to be about ven in this part of the county, with Willard in the lead for Governor: Elivson and Mador Anderson seem to be the only ones for their places.

Attorney General Anderson.

Attorney General Anderson.

A dispatch from Richmond says that Attorney-General Anderson, whose office makes him a member of the State Board of Education, is being heartily praised for his strong stand in favor of a full and searching investigation of conditions in that department. Major Anderson was one of those who insisted from the first that the school register charges, which have resulted in proof of long-continued graft, should be thoroughly probed.

The Attorney-General has administered his office in a way to make it the dread of evil doers. No official of the State whose transactions have been questionable need expect the Virgina Depariment of Justice to put brakes on the energy of prosecution because the officeholder is prominent and influential, or because the development of scandal might affect "the political situation."

Major Anderson announces that he is so busy attending to his duties as Aitorney-General that he will have no time to canvass the State in behalf of his renomination. He is a cand date for that homor, but he will let his work anoak for itself. Were he to leave his office now and go on the stump, the bushess of the State, he believes, would suffer; and, therefore, he will remain at his desk, no decision impresses we as being most creditable to the Attorney-General.—Norfolk Landmark.
